

Forward Still

This past week in Independent Student Mentorship I worked on my final project some more. I worked on the dorm building design, making sure that every room has a window in it, and that there are enough bathrooms for all of the students at the school. I need to figure out a way to make the building two sided. I need to figure out a way to put a wall in between the two sides of the building, one side for the male students, and one side for the female students.

I also need to finalise what sort of materials I am going to use to adorn the outside of the buildings, such as the brick, concrete, wood, and other materials. I want all of the buildings to have a common thread and to go together.

The more work that I do on the details of the floorplans and the furniture arrangements, the more security I will have in the details of my design. Since I am also meeting with my mentor to talk about my project, I need to have finalisations in the design. I am very excited to talk to my mentor about my project, since he has been out of town a lot recently. I plan to ask Mr. Horstman about making the model when I go on my mentor visit next week.
